

Nora Benhabiles, PhD, EMBA, is the Head of the Industrial Partnerships and External Collaborations of the Fundamental Research Division in CEA (French Atomic Energy Agency). Before she managed the health program in the French Atomic Energy Agency, in CEA List Institute (Saclay, FR) and in parallel in 2015 she was the Innovation Director ad interim of the EIT HEALTH (<http://eit.europa.eu/eit-community/eit-health>). Among former positions in Europe, she was head of the Bioinformatics and IT Department in a Biotech developing drugs for cardiovascular related diseases (FR), Visiting Professor of Biomedicine in the Katholieke Universiteit of Leuven (BE), and Researcher in threading methods, artificial intelligence methods, and force fields applied to protein folding and DNA structure in the University of Salzburg (AU) and in INSERM (FR). She is expert for the European Commission (Health, Environment – FP7, H2020) and for the French National Research Agency (ANR) (co-chair of the PRT-S 2014, PRT-S 2015, PRTS-2016, chair ANR emergence 2012, LabCom...), member of the CEA Technology for Health steering committee, member of Board of the Silver Valley, Vice-President of the ICT and health Board of the “interpole Medicen Systematic and Cap-Digital” and, Associate Editorial Board member of BMC Genomics.